GINOZA

The village of Ginoza, halfway down east coast of Okinawa Island, is set between the beautiful cobalt blue sea and the subtropical greenery of the land.

Hiramatsu chose this enchanting location, with its beautiful views of the rising sun, to establish its first gourmet resort hotel. Featuring villas with private pools, or guest rooms with pools overlooking the sea and jacuzzis as well as a fine dining restaurant, this private resort offers the finest cuisine, accommodation and hospitality, inviting you to enjoy the luxury of doing nothing.

Set in grounds measuring more than 21,000 square metres, the 19 guest rooms are built on a gentle slope, and all differ in size, interior décor, height of roof and view. There are five different types of guest room, including detached villas with their own swimming pool, and standard twin and double rooms.

HALEKULANI OKINAWA

Halekulani
OKINAWA

Halekulani, from the Hawaiian for ‘House of Befitting Heaven’, has a century-long history on Waikiki Beach, Hawaii in the United States. Born from the legacy built over generations, Halekulani Okinawa brings a new era of luxury to the beautiful coastal waters of the Okinawa Kaigan Quasi-National Park in Onna Village, Okinawa.

All guests staying at Halekulani Okinawa will enjoy guest rooms with views of the ocean and the magnificent natural scenery of Okinawa. Guest rooms feature at least 50 square meters of space, and include a terrace to enjoy the natural beauty outdoors. Inheriting Halekulani’s identity of the Seven Shades of White design concept, the guest rooms’ elegant white decor shines even more brightly against the glistening blue world outside.

Treeful owner Satoru Kikugawa's dream as a child was to "build a treehouse". In his early childhood, he was inspired by a book called "I want a big tree" in which the main character finds a big tree and builds a treehouse.

To protect nature in the making of the treehouse, the team built around the trees and never cut trees that were bigger than 5cm. The tree house itself is carbon negative, not carbon neutral.

All structures, including the AeroHouse, are built at least 1.2 meters above ground level so that it doesn't disturb animals and plants living in and above the ground. Kikugawa also applied for a patent for wooden dowels because the metal bolts used to build the treehouse produce 2.2 times more carbon dioxide by weight when they are made in a factory.

Instead of a lawn mower, they employed Donna the goat to keep the grass area maintained. They also incorporate composting toilets and eco-cutes that heat water using surplus electricity at midnight. In addition, they use ultraviolet light to sterilize hand-drilled well water instead of chlorine since chlorinated water unnecessarily kills microorganisms.

HYAKUNA GARAN

Nestled on the southern coast of Okinawa Island, Hyakuna Garan is a small, independent luxury resort just steps away from Hyakuna Beach and the Pacific Ocean.

Its design incorporates both Japanese and Ryukyu sensibilities, featuring elements like traditional limestone walls, red coral tiles, and local banyan trees. Within, there are only 14 executive rooms and three suites, all ocean-facing.

With an adults-only rule — no children under 13 can stay — it's the perfect spot for couples and honeymooners looking for a romantic tropical getaway. Hyakuna Garan is the only hotel in the area, so you're truly tucked away from the crowds.

For the ultimate in relaxation, the hotel offers six private rooftop baths, which hotel guests can reserve for free.

Experience nature's embrace as you feel the warm ocean breeze and listen to the sound of waves crashing ashore, all while soaking in the secluded open-air baths.

The property's location provides breathtaking panoramic views at sunrise and sunset. In the distance, on clear days, you may even catch a glimpse of Okinawa's most sacred site, Kudaka Island.

THE BUSENA TERRACE

BEACH RESORT

Nestled among the lush trees and white sands of the picturesque Cape Busena in Nago, just 90 minutes from Naha Airport in northern Okinawa, The Busena Terrace welcomes guests to a contemporary beach resort where the guestrooms and public spaces are designed to bring the surrounding beauty in. From the moment you step foot into our stunning open-air lobby, to the last sunset you witness before your departure, Mother Nature will remind you of why you came, and why you'll most definitely wish to return.

In all of the guestrooms, open plans and simply appointed interiors in tones of beige and white showcase the beauty of the natural surroundings. The view from your window, whether of lush gardens or the sparkling East China Sea, is an ever-changing work of art.

For those guests staying on our Club Floors or in our Club Cottages, a dedicated team of guest relations officers will see to your every need. Like a private villa at the western tip of Cape Busena, these bright and airy residences are the ultimate hideaway.
